Complete Calf Care

The first months of a calf's life are critical, so make sure you give them the best start possible with our Complete Calf Care programme.

Call us now to create a 12-month plan, including minerals, vaccines, drenches, and trace elements.

SCOUR MANAGEMENT

If you face challenges with scours when rearing calves, get in touch with us to discuss your options for prevention and treatment. Generally, scours result from either poor nutrition or infection, so a holistic approach is best.

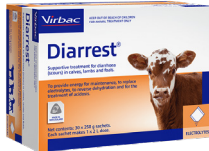

Our team is available for Calf Scour Testing this spring and have thermometers available to assist with diagnosis.

SENIOR PET CARE IN WINTER

Large dog breeds may be considered senior at seven years, while smaller breeds of dogs and cats are not usually considered senior until they are older than 10 years.

As our pets get older, their needs for exercise and nutrition change. They may not want to play as much as they used to or may prefer shorter walks than when they were young.

Senior pets, especially those with arthritis, will be feeling this cold southern winter. Make sure they have a warm comfortable bed and consider inside exercise for the days when the weather is particularly bad.

A scavenger hunt to find treats around the house may provide low impact exercise and mental stimulation for the older dog, while a brown paper bag that crinkles, or treats hidden in a rolled-up paper towel, may be entertaining for an older cat.

Most importantly, remember daily positive attention for your pet. Sometimes senior pets are overlooked in a busy household. Take time to play, train, or just sit with them.

If you have any concerns about your older pet, or would like advice, bring them in to visit one of our vets.

Are your pets up to date with their vaccinations?

Give us a call to talk about their needs.
