HELPING ANXIOUS PETS

Anxiety is a normal emotion experienced by all pets from time to time.

It can be caused by travel, loud noises, or unusual situations. Even a visit to your friendly vet can be stressful for pets.

Some animals are more prone to anxiety than others. Things you can do to help your pet stay calm include:

- Having the right gear for travelling (cage, lead, comfort blanket, etc.) and familiarising your pet with it for a few days prior to travel.
- Stay calm yourself.
- Use distractions, such as the radio or a favourite toy.
- Use a calming aid or anti-anxiety medication (these may need to be in place for a few days ahead of the stressful situation for maximum effect).

If you are concerned about your pet's anxiety, get in touch with us to discuss the best calming options for them.
